It is well known that exposure to indoor air pollutants can cause very significant damage to our health. We spend over 90% of our time staying indoor everyday, therefore indoor air quality (“IAQ”) is very important. This 2-hour course provides essential knowledge about IAQ, e.g. importance of IAQ, health effects due to indoor air pollutants exposure, IAQ management tips, etc. This course is designed for those individuals who would like to learn more about IAQ especially for those responsible for facility or building management in buildings, schools and hospitals.

Common indoor bioaerosols

Speaker – Dr Veronica Chan

Specialist – Green Building & IAQ

Dr Chan has over 14 years of experience in environmental-related research, consultancy, and training at various levels ranging from primary to postgraduate levels. Her expertise and research interests include monitoring and disinfection of the bioaerosols, health risk assessment, investigation and modelling of the indoor air quality (IAQ) pollutants. She has published 40 papers on peer-reviewed international journals and at conferences, contributed as an international journal reviewer, and participated in more than 100 IAQ-related projects.

Topics to be covered

- Why is IAQ so important?
- How does IAQ affect our health?
- What kinds of pollutants deteriorate IAQ?
- What are the Hong Kong and global guidelines and standards?
- What are the green building standard requirements on IAQ?
- How to manage IAQ?
- How to improve IAQ? What are the latest indoor air purification technologies?
